1. You should send your paper to a GCLS librarian for writing feedback.

   False

   If you need feedback on your paper you should send it to the CMU Writing Center. While the GCLS librarians can answer APA style questions, the CMU Writing Center can help you draft an outline, answer questions about the paper's overall format (spacing, headers, etc.), and offer feedback on what you have written. When you need a review of your writing, the CMU Writing Center is the place to go!

2. If you use material from a book or an article in your paper, you must include it in your reference list.

   True

   If you use information from a journal article or book or website in the writing of your paper, you must cite it properly in your list of references. Failure to do so is plagiarism.
